Rev. Dr. McGlynn's Sunday School Class of Presidential Candidates.

The Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, pastor of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church, delivered an impromptu address at the reception of Daniel McSweeney in the academy of music, New York, the other evening, in the course of which he said:

"I should like to preach to you thi evening about some of the old undisputed religious and moral truths that you know well enough, but that some may unfortunately be too prone to forget. How will it do to preach to you a little about some of the ten commandments, those particularly that concern most closely the political duties of individual voters, and still more the duties of officers elected or appointed by public trusts? How will it do for a text? [Great laughter and applause.] For the other, 'Thou shall not bear false witness against thy neighbor.' (Renewed laughter.) Or that other, 'Thou shall not take the name of God in vain.' 'Thou shall not swear falsly.'(Laughter and applause.) Or that other great and positive commandment, which in enjoining reverence, love and obedience to a father and mother, is, in the opinion of theologians, doctors and saints, intended to enforce also unselfishness, devotion and self-sacrificing attachment to the best interests of our fatherland, our motherland. [Applause.]

"It would be, I think, a very proper test to which to put the multitudinous aspirants to the presidential office, to catechise them as to their opinions, and, if you choose, their practice, as concerns these fundamental maxims of private and public morality. Well, then, let us get up a Sunday school class-[laughter] composed of said applicants; let us imagine the seven, or eight or more of them all sitting like good little boys and girls upon a bench upon this stage. [Great laughter.]

"Then we shall have Miss Belva Lockwood, Mr. St. John and one goody-goody little boy, who never goes fishing on Sunday or does any other naughty thing, who is well known as little Bennie Butler—[great laughter and applause.] and we must not forget Mr. James G. Blaine and Governor Grover Cleveland [Great applause.] Do not be afraid, I am not going to say anything partisan. I may have my own partisan predilections—but I am not going to tell you what they are, although, perhaps, some of you may be shrewd enough to guess. [Loud laughter.]

'Well, let the class commence; I should say to each aspirant, for instance; 'Sonny, or Sissy,' as the case may be, 'what do you think of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal? If another 'smart' boy should answer, 'Well, I should not like to say anything in praise of stealing, it would not sound well, but if you want my real view the crime is not so much in stealing as in being found out.' [Laughter.] I should instantly have to say, 'O, perverse and unregenerate youth, go down to the foot of the class.' [Great laughter and applause.] And if another bright boy should answer: 'Stealing is always wrong and cannot, therefore, be politic; and is really stealing in the higher sense of the commandment to abuse a public trust to private ends and to private gain,' I should say to that little boy: Good boy, for you, go up to the head of the class.' [Laughter and great applause.] And so I should put them through all those commandments that have the directest bearing upon the election to public office and the administration of public trust." (Applause.)

Repudiating Butler.

Greenback and Labor Men Declare for Cleveland and Hendricks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—At a special meeting of the county committee of the national greenback-labor party of the city held last evening at Turner's Hall the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the county committee of the national greenback-labor party of the city and county of New York in convention assembled, do hereby repudiate the action of the state committee in supporting Benjamin F. Butler for president of the United States, and as it has come to our knowledge that the said Butler is in close alliance with the republican party and that his pretended personal campaign is being conducted in the interest of James G. Blaine, the autocrat and enemy of the working classes of the United States;

"Resolved, That this committee do hereby pledge their united support to Cleveland and Hendricks, and will use all their influence with the workingmen and labor organizations to defeat Butler and his colleague James G. Blaine."

The committee adjourned to meet at Clarendon hall, Thirteenth street, Thursday evening.

John Kelly Talks.

He Will March with His Braves to Victory and Escort Cleveland to the White House.

"Will Tammany support the Democratic national ticket?"

"Well, that's a pretty question to ask," said Hon. John Kelly in reply to a Journal reporter's query. "Yes, sir; Tammany will support the Democratic candidates and the support she will give will mean sixty or seventy thousand majority in New York."

"There has been some talk of deals and bargains into which Tammany might be drawn?"

"Deals with whom? The Republicans? Oh, no, Tammany can afford to ignore all that sort of talk, and will persue the even tenor of her way undisturbed by such rumors. You have doubtless heard of the fellow who cried 'wolf! wolf!' when there was no wolf, and what happened to him. It would be well for the people to keep their eye on those who are so ready to cry, 'deal! deal! Tammany makes no deal. Mr. Cleveland was not Tammany's choice, to be sure, but he is the nominee of the party of which Tammany forms such an important part, and Tammany will be true to him as she has ever been true to the candidates of the Democratic party."

"Then Mr. Cleveland will be elected, you think?"

"He will be the next President beyond a doubt. Blaine is already defeated. The Ohio election was a small failure for the Republicans and now they are out with a begging letter from the National Committee asking for funds with which to carry Indiana and New York, for it will do no good; and as for Indiana, they can't put money enough in the State to carry it."

"As to your call on Governor Cleveland?"

"Well, now, really it seems odd that people will exercise themselves so much about so little. Can you see anything strange in my paying my respects to the Governor of the State and the nominee of my party when he was here, I may say, as the guest of the Democrats of New York? I called on him as a great many other gentlemen did, and perhaps he did me the honor of detaining me somewhat longer than he did some others in pleasant conversation, and I'm free to say that matters pertaining to the good of the party were touched upon and discussed."

Was Not His Arm.

The other evening a young lady with a white swiss skirt, black Jersey jacket and white cape, and her beau were promenading on East Washington street, when it suddenly became apparent to them that there was something unusual about them. Men stopped and looked after them, girls giggled and boys hooted.

'Sylvia, what on earth is the matter with everybody this evening?' queried the beau.

'I don't know, and what is more, I don't care, snorted Sylvia.

'What ails them?' asked one girl of another, just as they passed the unhappy couple.

'Don't know, unless she's sick and he has to hold her up,' asked her companion.

'Take off your arm!' cried a boy.

'Pull down the blinds!' shouted his chum.

'Gosh! Ain't they lovin'?' bellowed a third.

The young man was angry, and the young women was mad, and the boys were following at their heels and saying all manner of impertinent things. Two of the little rascals slipped up behind her, and one of them slyly put out his hand and as the girl and her beau separated, the urchin bawled:

'Lord! He ain't got his arm around her! That's where her black wescot sticks out from under her white shawl!' and then the young folks knew that the black streak of Jersey around her waist had been mistaken for his sleeve, and the girl went home to change her clothes.

It requires no small degree of art to know how to conceal it.

Her Heart's Desire.

"I tell you, Jack, the farm is not your invocation. I become more and more convinced of the fact every day, and less contented with the life we are leading."

Breakfast was over, and we stood on the farmhouse portico, arm in arm. On the sill of the door sat baby, screaming with delight as she fed a pair of pet pigeons from her dimpled hands. Our breakfast had been a delightful one—coffee as clear as amber, bread like snow and steak done to a turn.

All about us was a green tangle of sweetbriar and honeysuckle; the sun was just rising above the distant hills and the morning air was fresh and sweet, and filled with exquisite woodland odors and musical with the song of birds. We could catch a glimpse of the barn and poultry yards where we stood, and hear the plaintive lowing of the kine and the dream-like twinkle of the bells. I felt a vague sort of conviction that Jack had but little sympathy with my spirit of discontent, yet I was determined to carry my point if possible.

"You are dissatisfied with your lot—I see that plainly, Nell," said Jack, a trifle sadly.

"Oh, nonsense," I put in. "Not with my lot, nor with you, nor with the farm, Jack; I am tired to death with this prosy, humdrum life, and I hate to see you delving and toiling like a slave from one year's end to another. You are born for something better, Jack—something nobler and grander. Fancy a man of your abilities sowing grain, digging potatoes, and raising stock to his life's end."

"But, my dear," suggested Jack, "one must live and have bread and butter."

"To be sure Jack; but why not earn it in a more genteel fashion?"

"Honest labor is always genteel, Nell."

"Oh, pshaw! You misunderstand me, Jack. I mean that you have capabilities for something better. You only cling to the old farm to please your father, when you could do a hundredfold better elsewhere. And, besides, where is your society in this place, Jack? What chance is there for our children as they grow up?" Jack laughed as he glanced down at baby, who was struggling furiously to get a pigeon's head into her mouth.

"Ah, Nell, that is looking so far ahead," he said; "and, my dear, you seem to forget that I have lived here all my life."

"No, no, I don't forget; and, pray, what have you done, Jack?"

"Led an upright life and married you."

"But you didn't pick me up among the clover blossoms, Jack; don't forget that. You found me in town, and, Jack, dear, I'm so anxious to get back to my native element; I'm tired of all this. You can get on ever so nicely in town, Jack; and there we can get into society."

"I am not over-fond of society, Nell."

"Oh, but you should be, for my sake, Jack. I'm fond of it. I hate to live here like a hermit. Why, Jack, if we desire to give a little party to-morrow, we could not, for lack of guests."

"Dear me, Nell, why I could muster scores."

"Of a certain sort, yes; but I don't want them, Jack. I'm a little peculiar in my notions. I want no society but the best; the—the—sort of society one gets in town."

"Fashionable society, Nell."

"Well, then, why not? You have means, Jack, and I flatter myself that we are fitted to move in any circle. Why should we bury ourselves in this wilderness?"

"Our means are not inexhaustible, Nell."

"I'm aware of that, Jack, but we've enough for the start, and Vanborough offers you a good place in the bank."

"At a limited salary, Nell."

"Oh, yes, but you can work your way up, Jack—right up to the topmost round of the ladder. Do let's go, Jack! I've lived here to please you ever since our marriage, I think you can afford to please me a little now."

Jack sighed as he looked out upon the ripening grain fields, but he drew me close to his heart and kissed me.

"That's true," he said; "you can't be expected to care for the farm as I do. Nell, I promised to make you happy when you consented to be my wife, and I'll try to keep my word. You shall have your own way, Nell."

The continuous dropping of water wears away the solid stone. I had conquered mp husband at last and the desire of my heart was about to be accomplished. When Jack once made up his mind to do a thing, he did it with all his might. The matter was soon settled. Cherry Hill, as we called the farm, was sold at a great sacrifice, and one sunny morning we turned our backs upon the breezy down and golden grain fields and journeyed cityward.

"I'm afraid you've made a great mistake," said Jack's father as he bade us good-by; you'd better have stuck to the farm. "You remember the old srying about the rolling stones."

"I don't believe in old sayings, sir," I answered, loftily, "and I think I can appreciate my husband's ability better that any one else can."

"All right; hope you won't find yourselves mistaken, my dear. Good-by to both of you. Whatever you do, care well for the little one. I'm afraid she won't like the change. If you happen to tire of the town and fashion, don't forget that a welcome awaits you at home."

Jack's heart was too full for utterance.

"Thank you, sir; I said; but we shall not get tired."

Our new home in town was a stylish residence in a fashionable street. We established ourselves in the principle hotel, and then set about furnishing the house.

"My dear child," said Mrs. Vanborough, the banker's wife, dropping in for an early call, don't dream of such a thing as ingrain carpet. Get Brussels by all means; good English brussels. You'll find it much cheaper in the end, and, besides, it's much more stylish."

We hearkened to our friend's advice, and the cost run up into hundreds. Then furniture was got to match, Mrs. Vanborough and several other friends aiding us in our selection, and all sorts of pretty costly bric-a-bric, real lace curtains, and a new piano. My old instrument was too plain and clumsy for the new establishment.

There is a sort of curious excitement in spending money, which seems to drive the most sober and economizing people desperate when they once get at it. Jack had always been one of the most careful of men, counting the cost of everything as he went and saving every stray penny. Once in the vortex of town life his prudence was speedily changing into a sort of recklessness. After the first few days, and by the time our new home was ready to receive us, he actually seemed to take delight in seeing his money go.

"We've got snug quarters here, Nell, by George!" he said, looking through the extravagantly-furnished rooms with admiring pride. "No one in town can out-shine us, not even Vanborough himself. It has lightened our purse a good deal, I'll admit, but what does that signify? What good comes of having money unless one enjoys it!"

"We must try and save up a little now, Jack, since we are fixed up so nicely," I said, feeling somewhat terrified at his growing recklessness.

"Pshaw, child. Who ever heard of a banker's clerk saving anything? If we make both ends meet, it will be more than I look for."

"My dear," said Mrs. Vanborough, when we were pleasantly situated in our handsome house and hired a couple of servants, "I suppose you will want to give some kind of a party now? It is customary, you know. Suppose you let it be an informal reception, with cards and coffee for the old people, and ices and fruits and dancing for the young ones. That would do nicely. You can throw your parlors into one, and the new carpets will not get much injured. I'll help you order your refreshments, and Cecelia will write your invitations for you. She is an excellent judfie as to whom it is expedient to invite."

I mentioned the matter to Jack when he came home, and he entered into the spirit of the affair with great excitement.

"To be sure, little wife have a party by all means. When one is in Rome one must do as Romans do, you know. Don't spare expense, either, my dear; we must make as good a show as other people. And I shall take upon myself to order your custume. I want you to look a grand as a little empress."

"But, Jack," I suggested, timidly, "we are spending a great deal of money."

"Oh, well, never mind. It will go somehow, one way or another, and we might as well enjoy it. You've always wanted to get into good society, Nell, and you're fairly in now, and it won't do to let people see that you are cramped for money. Let's make the most of it while we've got it."

My heart ached a little, and in the midst of all the flare and flutter of preparation I was conscious of a vague feeling of regret whenever I recalled the quiet moments of my early wifehood I spent at Cherry Hill. Jack had seemed to take as much pleasure in life's frivolities as I did. With the foolish inconsistency of my sex I sat down and cried over the consummation of the very hopes which I had cherished so long.

But, despite my tears, the reception came on, and it turned out to be a great success. The best people in town honored us with their presence, and everything, thanks to Mrs. Vanborough's foresight, was carried on in the most lavish and elegant manner possible.

"By George," said Jack, "this sort of thing is jollier than the old farm. I see now, little wife, that you are right."

I would ten times rather he should have upbraided and blamed me for what I had done. The winter that followed was exceedingly gay. We were invited everywhere, and our house was constantly filled with guests; ball, soirees, kettledrums and the opera seemed to embrace every hour. Jack and I seldom had a quiet moment together, yet he seemed to enjoy it with his whole heart. When Spring came our last surplus dollar had been expended and we were dependent on Jack's monthly salary.

The warm weather came on and baby soon fell ill. I hoped day by day that Jack would say something about going back to his father's for the Summer, but he didn't even hint at such a thing. The days grew longer and warmer. The sun shone down with pitiless splendor and the paved streets seemed like heated brass. Our fashionable friends fluttered off like summer swallows and we were left almost alone.

"Couldn't you manage to make a little trip to the seashore, my dear?" Mrs. Vanborough had suggested, and Jack caught at the idea with eagerness.

"We might, Nell; I think we can. I'll try and borrow a few hundred somewhere."

"Oh, Jack, no, no!" I sobbed out in my remorse and despair. "I won't go to the seashore. You see how ill baby is. Oh, Jack, ask your father to let us return home."

"Oh, you wouldn't be satisfied, Nell, if we went back. It's dreadful stupid down there these days with the haymaking and reaping and all that sort of thing. We never should be able to endure it there now."

I said no more. The long, bright, burning days wore on, and our bills ran up higher, and baby's little breath seemed to grow weaker and weaker, and poor Jack himself seemed to look dreadfully ill and worn. And one afternoon he was sent home in a carriage quite unconscious, stricken down by a sudden fever. I put my pride aside then, and wrote a letter to Jack's father.

"Jack and the baby are both ill," I said, "and we are sick and tired of life. Pray forgive us, and let us come home."

The very next day the dear old gentleman arrived, but the sheriff was before him, Jack having confessed judgment in a law suit. The rumor that we intended to leave town got out, and our creditors rushed in, anxious to secure the lion's share of our effects. The Brussels carpet, the handsome furniture, and the costly bric-a-bric, all went under the hammer at disastriously low figures.

"Never mind," said my father-in-law, not a shadow of reproach on his kind old face, "let them squabble over it, if they will. We must get the sick ones home."

So we got Jack into the carriage, and with his poor hot head upon my knee and baby in my arms, I turned my back upon the scene of short lived triumph.

"We are going back to Cherry Hill," said the old gentleman, as in the dusk of the golden day we drove through the dewy stillness of the sheltered lane. "The old home has been waiting for you all these months. I was pretty sure you would come back."

I could not utter one word in answer.

A great full moon was rising above the distant hills as we reached the house. Not the smallest thing was changed. The great red roses bloomed on the terrace, the bees droned in their hives, and the cattle-bells tinkled in the barnyard. The door was wide open.

We carried Jack in, and laid him down in the broad, breezy room that had been our bridal chamber. He opened his eyes and drew a deep, quivering breath as the refreshing breeze touched his throbbing head.

"Nell, where are you?" he said. "Surely, this must be home."

"I am here, Jack;" I answered through my tears; "and this is home, dear old Cherry Hill!"

"Thank God!" he murmured, and fell back among the pillows, and I saw great tears trickling slowly from beneath his closed eyelids.

Beyond the open window, in the silvery glory of the rising moon, the old grandfather sat, with baby at his feet, half hidden in the rank, cool grass, and even at that hour the pigeons came fluttering around her as of old, and she screamed with rapture as she clutched at them with her thin, little hand.

I rose softly and fell on my knees beside Jack's low pillow.

"Oh, Jack," I sobbed. "I have been so wicked. Forgive me! I am so glad, so very glad to be at home again."

His worn face grew radiant and his dear arms held me close. And then and there, clasped to my husband's heart, in the sweet shelter of the home he loved, I understood all the past.

"You didn't mean it, Jack," I whispered. "You only pretended to enjoy it to please me."

He smiled most tenderly at me with his grave, fond eyes.

"And, oh, Jack, our money is all gone, and—"

He silenced me with a kiss.

"No matter, little woman, the lesson we have learned has been cheaply bought. We shall not care to leave the safe old nest in search of fashion and society again."

I could not answer. I heard my baby cooing to the pigeons in the grass, and I sat there, clasped in Jack's forgiving arms, the happiest woman the round world held.

Talmage on Crime.

Extravagances account for the positive crimes, the foreignors, and the absconding of the officers of the banks. The store on Broadway and the office on Wall street are swamped by the residence on Madison Square. The father's the husband's craft capsized by carrying too much domestic sale. That is what springs the leak in the merchant's money-till. That is what cracks the pistols of suicides. That is what tears down Marine Banks. That is what stops insurance companies. That is what halts this nation again and again in its triumphant march of prosperity. Look at the one fact that is a matter of solid statistics that in this country, in the cities of New York and Brooklyn—I will narrow it down—it is estimated that there are over five thousand women whose apparel costs them over two thousand dollars a year each. Things have got to such a pass that when we cry over our sins in church, we wipe the tears away with a one hundred and fifty dollar pocket-handkerchief! Here is a domestic tragedy in five acts.

Act the First—A home plain and beautiful. Enter newly-married pair. Enter contentment. Enter as much happiness as ever gets in one home.

Act the Second—Enter discontent. Enter desire for larger expenditure. Enter envy. Enter jealousy.

Act the Third—Enter the queenly dressmakers. Enter the French milliners. Enter all costly plate and all great extravagance.

Act the Fourth—Tip-top of society. Princes and princesses of New York and Brooklyn floating in and out. Everything on a large and magnificant scale. Enter contempt for other people.

Act the Fifth and last—Enter the assignee. Enter the sheriff. Enter the creditors. Enter humiliation. Enter the wrath of God. Enter the contempt of society. Enter Death and Hell. Now, drop the silk curtain. The farce is ended and the lights are out.

I called it a tragedy. That is a misnomer. It is a farce.

A Chicago youth, on visiting in the country and hearing a casual reference to "husking bees" chased a bee three miles in order to ascertain if possible what kind of a husk it had on.

The Coming Election.

Democrats, next Tuesday it is in your power to so shape public affairs in future years, as to give the interests and welfare of this great country into the hands of honest and reliable officials, who will have nothing at heart but the good of its people. To accomplish this end you must make it the mainpoint to be at the polls yourselves, and be there early and late to see that your fellow democrats, young or old, strong or feeble are there also. Get out the vote. Have that vote cast for your candidates only, without scratching or trading. If you trade you take a risk in another party's game and be the looser every time. There is no need for trading off any of your candidates—they are without any exception fully entitled to your strongest support. Lay your personal objections if you have any, aside and vote a straight and out and out democratic ticket, as it becomes your established and honest democratic convictions. If you do that you will not have voted in yain, but will have the satisfaction of having helped to gain a glorious victory for the democratic county, judicial and national ticket. A reward like this is worth working for. Therefor let us get out the full vote, and devote all our time to the achievement of democratic success.

AT PRESENT it seems more than probable that Cleveland will be the successful candidate for the presidency of the United States and if elected we may look for a shaking-up of the country politically, officially and socially. Well, the health of the Government needs a thorough shaking up, and the Republican party will be utterly shaken to pieces. Bereft of office it will have nothing to hold it together, and the political philosopher, going about on the 5th of November with a lamp, will meet with no better success in finding Republicans, then did Diagones in his search for an honest man.

DEMOCRATS, BEWARE!

Judicial tickets are being circulated with A.O. Furst's and Munson's name printed on. Watch for those tickets and by no means vote them.

Adam Hoy is the democratic candidate for President Judge and the man you want to vote for. Keep an eye on bogus tickets.

THE New York Sun admits Cleveland's election and gives as a reason that the people are determined to have an honest man in the highest office of this great country. Straws tell which way the wind blows.

CONGRESS.

As matters stand now, a few days before the election, the three congressional candidates of this district, two of them democratic and one republican, are strictly speaking, irregular nominees. Curtin in the lead with the nomination and backing of the two largest counties in the district, Hall with a machine nomination of twelve conferees, who worked in the personal interest of their candidates, and Patton, the republican candidate nominated by a conference of volunteers from only three counties in the district.

Mr. Hall, the presumptuous aspirant for Curtin's seat in Congress, in his address to the voters of the district calls the Ex-Governor a "bolter." Well, if there is any bolting in this business, James Knox Polk Hall, from Elk, the smallest man from the smallest county in the district is the greatest and unsafest bolter in the lot. The conferees who nominated Mr. Hall were not representatives of the people, but were chosen by the candidates from the four counties whose combined democratic vote is about 1500 less than that of Centre and Clearfield counties.

Whenever an able and honest man like Curtin, who is the choice of the people for an important office is opposed by a few ringsters, we may be sure that there is an undercurrent of some special and selfish influence. That the aim of the Hall crowd was mainly to defeat Goy. Curtin is clear and it is asserted by reliable parties that they acted as agents of certain railroad corporations, who do not like Curtin, nor want him in Congress on account of the courageous stand he took against their landsteals. But just for that reason the 10,000 democrats of Centre and Clearfield as well as the many friends and admirers of A. G. Curtin in the other counties, want him there, and will send him there in spite of opposing monopolists and ring leaders. The very fact that Curtin will not play into the pockets of capitalists and railroad kings, but will represent the laborer, is the keynote to his election next Tuesday.

When reading Mr. Hall's letter in last week's Watchman it is no difficult matter to form an idea of the principles and abilities of the gentleman. He proves himself to be a confirmed egotist with strong tendencies to tell falsehoods. Among the many untrue statements in his brilliant (?) address to the Democracy he tries to harm Curtin on the ground of change of politics. He says that Curtin came over from the Republican party in 1879 and wanted an office immediately. That's cool, isn't it? Anybody, who knows anything at all, knows that Hon. A. G. Curtin left the Republican party in 1872, and served as a democratic delegate in the constitutional convention at Philadelphia 1872-1873, helped to defeat Grant for the presidency and stumped the country for Tilden in 1876 and has proved himself an earnest and devoted democrat without ever asking for an office. Little tales like that will do Mr. Hall very little good if any, because there are hundreds of men in the district who can testify to their incorrectness.

Mr. Hall might as well take it for granted that his letter will not go far towards his success, and that the people demand the election of a man who is known by them and has proved a friend to them.

Hon A. G. Curtin is the right man in the right place and every good and rational Democrat will vote for him.

Vote for Adam Hoy.

When preparing your ticket for thebal lot next Tuesday, it will be advisable for Democrats to be very particular about the judicial ticket. Bear in mind that Adam Hoy, the present president judge, is our man and that it would be a sad mistake to vote for his opponent, Mr. Furst. There is not an earthly thing that Mr. Furst has ever done for the Democratic party, but always displayed his bitter opposition to it. While Mr. Hoy has belonged to the democratic party from his boyhood up, has been an active worker and a popular and well-liked lawyer. Since he has been appointed by Goy. Pattison to take the place of Judge Orvis he has shown in every judicial question brought before him, that he possesses the ability of judging impartially and correctly. The office of President Judge will be in safe hands if given to Mr. Hoy. If elected he will re-enter upon the duties of his office with the manly resolution to fulfill them justly and conscientiously, and will not allow his prejudices to interfere with the performance of his important functions in any case. Remember his undisputed qualifications for the position and his genial disposition as a fellow citizen and see to it that he receives your vote. Do not trade, neither on the judicial nor on the county ticket. Vote for Hoy!

LOOK out for a political earthquake next Tuesday, and for agonizing, cruel news for the Republicans. The Democrats are up and doing to gain a grand victory if it's in the wood.

What it Means.

A vote for John G. Love and Wm. M. Allison to represent Centre county in the Legislature means two votes for a Republican United States Senator, while a vote for Leonard Rhone and J. A. Woodward means a Democratic United States Senator and a fair apportionment of the state. Under these circumstances no true Democrat will hesitate to vote for the nominees of his party. Rhone and Woodward will make honorable and efficient members and will represent their constituents well Therefore stick to your ticket, Democrats and vote for Rhone and Woodward.

Judge Hoy's Record.

During the time Judge Hoy has been on the bench, five of his cases have been taken to the Supreme Court, one from Centre and four from Huntingdon county. Of the Huntingdon county cases three have been argued and decided. The one from Centre has likewise been argued and decided. All of these four cases were affirmed and the rulings of Judge Hoy sustained by the Supreme Court. This is a record scarcely ever had by any new judge and strongly appeals to the voters of this judicial district to liberally support Judge Hoy at the election next Tuesday.

DEMOCRATS look out for all kinds of stories about your nominees on the congressional, judicial and county tickets during the few days before the election. Under no circumstances pay any attention to such schemes, which are worked by men who foster personal spite against our candidates. Do not allow them to influence your honest vote in any wise or manner.

LOOK to your own welfare in voting for your representatives. Mr. Woodward is well-known as a man of marked abilities and one who takes great interest in agriculture. Mr. Rhone is an intelligent and honest gentleman, a practical farmer and like Mr. Woodward a fluent speaker. Both these gentlemen are good democrats and democrats should vote for them and thereby secure representatives, that will truly represent them. Besides we want a democratic majority in the Legislature so as to be able to secure a democratic United States Senator and a fair apportionment of the state. If you do not vote for Rhone and Woodward you help to defeat two democratic representatives and help the Republicans to the United States Senatorship. Weigh these points carefully in your minds, and then prove your loyality to the party by voting for Messrs. Rhone and Woodward. A word to the wise is sufficient.

MR. MILES WALKER, the democratic candidate for sheriff is a gentleman of unquestioned qualifications for that office. He is an obliging and genial young man who will at all times have the faithful performance of the duties of his office at heart. A solid democrat himself, he deserves the cheerful support of his fellow democrats.

IF YOU would have our county affairs administered economically and honestly so as to benefit every taxpayer vote for Wolf and Griest for county commissioners. They have shown in the past that they understand well how to keep house with the people's money.

R. G. BRETT, the democratic candidate for Prothonotary, is going to receive a heavy vote. He has warm friends everywhere, because he is a good citizen and an old democrat and will make an accommodating and efficient officer.

The Battle in Curtin's District.

One of the most interesting local contests in the State is in progress in the Twentieth district, where Ex-Governor Curtin and Mr. Hall, of Elk, are opposing Democratic candidates, with the Republicans apparently divided between Curtin and the policy of a candidate of their own. The district is largely Democratic on a strict division between the Democrats and Republicans, but it has large outside and independent elements which can hold the balance of power between the old parties when they decide to assert themselves.

If the Democrats of Clearfield, Centre, Clinton, Elk, Mifflin and Union counties could have voted directly to express their choice between Curtin or Hall as their candidate for Congress, they would have voted for Curtin three or five to one; but the vicious and demoralizing system of giving a complimentary nomination and pocket conferees to a man in every county, silenced the expression of the popular choice and reduced the nomination to a game of barter between a crowd of ambitious men. The fact that Curtin received the votes of four of the six counties of the district in the conference on different ballots, but never on any one ballot, proved that he was either the first or second choice of a decided majority of the conferees, and proved also that the most of the battering candidates meant to mock his friends with a pretense of support, but had predetermined his defeat. The result was, after five ineffectual meetings at as many different places, Curtin's conferees from Clearfield and Centre, who represented 1,500 majority of the whole Democratic vote of the district, ended the farce by nominating him, and the conferees from the other four counties nominated Mr. Hall.

There are many considerations, both local and general, which call loudly up on the Twentieth district for the return of Ex-Governor Curtin to Congress. He stands abreast with Mr. Randall, as the most conspicuous Representatives of national fame in our delegation, and his services and influence for the vital measures now accepted as essential to better administration, to the protection of labor and to the dethronement of monopoly, have been recognized not only by the industrial voters of his district, but by the Democrats and friends of reform in every State of the Union. It is his well attested attitude and efforts for the Labor interests of the country that have made it perilous for his party to trifle with the industrial voters, and his eminent ability and national distinction appeal to the just pride of the people of the Twentieth district and of Pennsylvania.

The suicidal policy of rotation in office, enforced by the shrieks of locality, has done more to belittle Pennsylvania in our national councils than any other cause. Philadelphia has discarded it and now is honored throughout the land for returning the three oldest members of the House in continued service; and Lancaster now reflects the fadeless lustre of the Commoner of the War, not only by the services of Thaddeus Stevens that were ended by death, but also by his renomination even when his dead body lay in state in his Lancaster home. And the people of the Twentieth district have strongly impressed their appreciation of eminent ability by forbidding the retirement of Senator Wallace from the public service. Since his first election to the Senate in 1863, he has been summoned continuously to public duties, as State or United States Senator, and that wise policy should demand the return of Ex-Governor Curtin. No man in the district can exceed Curtin in substantial usefulness to Pennsylvania, and the great struggle of the last session to save a safe and conservative Tariff policy, in which Curtin stood in the front rank with Randall, should command the heartiest approval of his district, as it has commanded the broad approval of the Democracy in its national platform. Viewed from any standpoint, the interests, the pride and the sense of justice of the voters of the Twentieth district, should lead them to the cordial support of Curtin, regardless of partisan differences.—Phila. Times.

A Queen's Opinion.

J. M. Queen writes from Johnston, W. Va., that he has been sorely afflicted for several years, but he was urged to try PERUNA, which he did, and he now feels that he is about over his trouble, and considers it the greatest medicine in the world. He says he has to go or send a distance of fifteen miles to obtain PERUNA, but it will repay him for this.

Ellwood Shallcross, former editor of the Saturday Journal, Wheeling, W. Va., says: "Gentlemen: Some time ago I was afflicted with a pain in my back in the region of the kidneys, and suffered considerably. Having read your advertisement, I went to Logan & Co., of this city, and purchased a bottle of PERUNA, which I took, and it resulted in the complete removal of the pain. I think I can safely recommend it as a superior panacea for pains."

Mr. Aaron Shreffler, Alma, Marion county, Ill., writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O. Dear Sirs: Myself and wife have taken three bottles of your medicines and received much benefit by the use of them. My wife was troubled with neuralgia, headache and weak stomach. Her headache has not troubled her for the last two weeks, and her stomach is much better. She took only PERUNA. I used both medicines, and my general health is so much improved that I feel like a new man. My stomach is very much better, and the MANALIN keeps my bowels all right. We intend to keep taking the medicines until we are permanently cured."

Evans T. Jones, Prospect, Marion Co., O., says: "After having taken medicine from different physicians of this place without any relief, I was induced to try your PERUNA, which I purchased of Cook Bros., druggists, of this place, and after using some six bottles of the same, I feel very much benefited. Am sure it will finally work an entire cure."

T. J. Ewing, Cattletsburg, Ky., writes: "In the early part of last winter I contracted a severe cold, attended with a bad cough; then, being exposed during late flood, added to my disability. I have taken your PERUNA with good results. My cough has entirely left, soreness is gone, and am increasing in flesh.

Thomas Bradford, 314 Western Avenue, Allegheny City, Pa., writes: "I have had liver complaint for three years; I thought I would have to quit work; I have taken two bottles of your PERUNA, and am well."

S. Wolf & Son, Wilmot, Ohio, write: "We handle your goods, and they give good satisfaction."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26 1884.

The election is but a little more than a week off, after about three months of as hot a campaign as we have had since old Tippecanoe rode into the White House under the cry of "two dollars a day and roast beef." This was what the Whigs of forty years ago promised to the workingmen as a bait for catching votes, and the same game is being attempted now by the Blaine crowd, who are promising all the good-y-goodies of this life with an era of prosperity such as we have never seen, while manufactories all over the country are closing up and throwing thousands of laboring men out of employment. Such facts as these staring the people in the face, can easily overcome any amount of magnetism and all the bladerdash about good times that the Republican orators can expectorate. The tremendous meetings of the Democracy in New York city and the prodigious gatherings of the Independents in other parts of the country, are portents of the cyclone that is going to sweep the fraudulent Republican organization out of existence on the 4th of November, for rest assurred the defeat of that party at this Presidential election means absolute and irrevocable defunctitude. With all of their money and all of their effort and all of their fraudulent devices concentrated upon Ohio, their victory was just barren enough of results to encourage the Democracy to pull off its coat and go to work in earnest, and you may set me down as neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, if my prediction of an utter Republican rout does not prove true.

I see that the lobby has already commenced to rally at the hotels, with Congress six weeks off and the Presidential election yet to come. Some of these third house chaps have an office in view, some are in the interest of some sort of a Government grab, but a good majority are for extra appropriations for public buildings in different portions of the country, and have simply come on in advance of Congress to enlist the good offices of the heads of departments. Here is a fellow from a one-horse town in Florida who has got a $150,000 appropriation, but he wants a quarter of a million. Little Nevada, with scarce population enough to entitle her to a Congressman, wants a $100,000 post office building for one of its towns that never had and never will have 4,000 people. Proctor Knott's Duluth has had $125,000, and wants more for a post office, when the town is going backwards with twice the celerity that it ever came forward. As a matter of absolute business, three-quarter of the public buildings that were authorized to be constructed at the last Congress were entirely unnecesary, but they furnished magnificent opportunities for corner-lot owners to rake in fortunes, and building contractors to quarter themselves on the Treasury for an indefinite period.

—BOOTS? Any amount of them at Kauffman & Co's. store, at Millheim, and dirt cheap at that. If you doubt it, go and look for yourself.

—Last Friday the first snow of the season covered the ground and it made a fellow shiver. A cold cutting wind accompanied the drifting snow.

—P. S. Meyer, the jovial miller at Pine Creek Mills, called at the JOURNAL office and left the name and cash of a new sub. Welcome every time, Philip.

NOTICE.—The Rev. B. Hengst will hereafter preach both in the morning and evening in the English language at Millheim, with an occasional german sermon.

—W. H. Bartholomew, Spring Mills has just received a large lot of Children's, Misses' and Ladies' Coats, also Men's Overcoats. His goods are cheaper than ever.

—Our friend, A. F. Harter, returned on Monday evening from his extended western tour. Ad has a liking for travel, and wants to see as much of the world as possible.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Snook returned from Philadelphia on Monday, where Mrs. Snook had been for several weeks for her health. She was greatly benefited by the trip.

—New arrivals this week in Fall and Winter Millinery. Best and largest assortment and lowest prices at Mrs. Anna M. Weaver's shop, on Penn street, Millheim, Pa.

—The M. E. church was full to overflowing on Sunday evening. The good work of conversion of penitents is still going on there and will no doubt leave its good effects.

—Our young friend, jeweler P. H. Musser, last week became the happy papa of a young son and of course it is the baby. We think Philip grew a few inches taller since the event.

—Rev. Felker, a former pastor of the Aaronsburg Lutheran church, spent Sunday with his many friends on this charge and preached eloquent sermons at Aaronsburg and Millheim.

—The JOURNAL may probably reach our readers a day latter than usual next week and we hope they will excuse the delay. We desire to give them correct news of the election results.

—We were pleased to notice Mr. S. D. Tobias, who had been confined to the house by sickness for quite a while, on our streets and looking quite well. Hope he may enjoy continued health.

—The spire for the Evangelical church arrived the other day, and is an ornamental piece of work. It is manufactured of some kind of metal and represents a base with an urn resting thereon.

—Penn street residents are still sighing for street lamps. Likely after the political turmoil is over there may be something done in that direction. It is an awful dark street in comparison to Main street.

—Adam Weaver, executor of the estate of Adam Weaver, late of Haines township, deceased, will make sale of the real estate and personal property of decedent, on Saturday, Nov. 1st, 1884. See notice on second page.

Just received—a lot of Gent's Overcoats—the latest and best at the lowest prices. Also a fine stock of Boy's and Chilnren's suits. Call at our headquarters for bargains.

D. S. KAUFFMAN & CO.,
Main Street, Millheim, Pa.

—Rev. S. E. Furst, the pastor of the Lutheran church at Bellefonte, has tendered his resignation to that charge, to take effect on the first of January. The members of the charge are trying to induce Rev. Furst to stay with them.

MILLINERY.—Mrs. E. Brumgard hereby respectfully announces that she has opened her large stock of goods, which go to make up the most attractive and latest styles of Hats, Bonnets and other kinds of headwear for ladies. She invites the public to call on her and guarantees satisfaction in work and prices.

—The confidence man was in town on Friday afternoon and offered glowing chances to a small crowd of men on Main street to quickly enrich themselves by winning from $5 to 15.00. Several gentlemen were taken in and the scamps departed with a clear profit of about $20, made in an hour's time. Don't bet on another man's game.

—EMINENT PHYSICIANS connected with the principal hospitals throughout the United States report very gratifying and satisfactory results from the use of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier in all cases of vitilated blood, emaciated condition, enfeebled digestive power, malassimilation of food, &c. But few diseases can withstand its remarkable purifying, tonic, and reconstructive power. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

NOTICE.—Persons knowing themselves indebted to the town clock fund are notified that their subscriptions are due and are requested to remit their amounts at an early day. Moneys will be received by P. H. Musser and W. S. Maize.

By order of Committee.

READ.—A new lot of samples of wall papers just received at Wm. T. Mauck & Son's furniture store, Millheim, Pa. The latest styles, the best varieties and most novel designs of papers can be procured at short notice. Call on them and examine their numerous samples.

—The JOURNAL acknowledges the receipt of the most productive and wonderful cabbage head ever seen in in this section. Beneath the head proper there are 12 minature heads, each about the size of a cup, grouped in a circle, and as solid and fully developed as the large head. This family of cabbage heads is a rare curiosity in the vegetable line and of great interest to our gardeners. That pleasent lady, Mrs. W. H. Smith, in whose garden it was grown, sent it.

—The store of Dinges, Trumpfheller & Co. at Coburn is chuckfull of bargains for all. But they offer special inducements until Nov. 10th on Men's White, Gray and Red Underwear, Men's Driving, Kip and Rubber Boots, Men's Hats, Suits and Overcoats, Ladies' Coats and Jackets, Dress Goods, Flannels and Cantons, Brown and White Sugars, Teas and Green Coffees, Go and buy your butcher supplies of them. Remember Dinges, Trumpfheller & Co.

—According to previous announcement the re-dedication of the U. B. church at this place was celebrated last Sunday forenoon, at which occasion Rev. M. P. Doyle, of Lebanon, preached a powerful sermon from Psalms XXVII: 4: "One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to inquire in his temple."

A large number of people were present to hear his eloquent discourse. He also preached in the evening to a crowded church, and again deeply impressed his audience by his forcible remarks. Their debt resting on the church from the late repairs was almost wiped out.

—Last Saturday evening an interesting meeting was held in the town hall by the Democracy of Millheim and surrounding country. After the customary election of President and Vice Presidents, the chairman, ex-sheriff Musser introduced the first of the speakers of the evening, Mr. A. Williams, who neatly paved the way for the speakers who were to follow, by a few statistical remarks. J. L. Spangler, Esq., was then introduced, who made a sound and sensible speech, quoting several of Blaine's condemning "Dear Fisher" Letters and making some striking comparisons between the character and career of the Mulligan candidate and such men as George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Spangler was listened to with great interest and much enthusiasm. Hon. J. H. Orvis then took the floor amid a shower of applause and held the attention of his audience for a full hour. He started out with an apologetic remark about being rusty in making political speeches but when done all admitted that the Ex-Judge cuts as great a figure on the political stump as he did on the bench. Judge Orvis in his address effectively showed the necessity of honest public officers and clearly proved that the republican candidate lacked the qualities of an honest and upright official and was consequently a dangerous man to entrust with the adminstration of the U. S. government. He eulogized the great Reform Goyernor Cleveland and spoke confidently of his election. His statement of facts about the congressional contest were telling and fair and impressed everybody with the advisability of voting for Hon. A. G. Curtin, of whom the Judge talked in very commendable terms. Further on Mr. Orvis referred to his successor on the bench, Adam Hoy, and gave his audience the assurance that he will make the best and safest president judge for whom nobody need hesitate to vote. After endorsing and recommending the balance of the democratic county ticket the speaker bid his pleased hearers good-night. Hon. J. H. Orvis is a man who is possessed of good, sound judgement and who can express his opinion in public in a fearless and honest manner. The addresses made our Democrats all the more solid, if such a thing is possible, and they will be heard from on November 4th.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned worm syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—PROVEN FACTS.—D. S. Kauffman & Co. have just received second lot of Ladies' Coats, and have now the largest stock, the best variety, the finest selection and lowest prices ever given to this community. Come, see and convince yourself. The benefits you will derive at their bargain store, at Millheim are unequaled.

Coburn Briefs.

Mud was abundant beginning of the week.

Our town had a narrow escape from fire the other morning. I. J. Grenoble's grain house took fire from a flue. It was extinguished before doing any serious damage.

Another political meeting on Friday evening, at Coburn. Hon. A. H. Dill and J. T. Baker, Esq., of Union county will be the speakers. The Millheim band is expected to furnish the music.

Andy Vonada is a good trapper. He succeeded in catching about half a dozen coons and several minks.

Our good old friend, father Stonebreaker, devotes most of his time in making speeches for Blaine and Logan.

H. H. Trumpfheller and W. E. Smith are here looking up their respective business interests.

The latest improvement spoken of in our little burg is a boardwalk to extend from the bridge to the toll-gate. A good idea—go ahead Z.

—MCDONALD'S Improved Liver Pills secure a healthy liver regularity of the bowels, good digestion, sound sleep, clear head, and an active energetic mind. No constipation, no billiousness, no jaundics, no sick headache, or torpidity of liver or kidney possible, when occasional doses of these pills are used. All druggists keep them. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Penn Hall Shavings.

The banner spoken of in our last shavings was raised on Tuesday evening, of last week, and quite a crowd of eager spectators were assembled to see the banner of "Cleveland and Hendricks, Curtin and Victory."

The Democratic meeting held at this place was attended by a good many people, considering the inclemency of the weather. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Joseph Smith, after which Mr. D. Runkle was chosen president and J. Smith, secretary. Aaron Williams, Esq., was the first speaker. He made a good address and kept the audience in an uproar all the time by his little jokes. He was followed by district Attorney Heimle, whose ability as a political stump speaker is well-known. The democrats went home happy and judging by their smiles our republican friends were also in good humor.

F. Hosterman's Billy goat took it into his head the other day that he was the Royal Bumper and tested his strength when one of our Spring Mills friends passed by. He struck the gentleman with full force and landed him about a rod away. So much for the goat. JACK PLANE.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless articles drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Madisonburg News.

SHIN BONE has given up to correspond for the JOURNAL, for some good reason I suppose, so I will endeavor to fill his place.

Miss Agnes Bierly has gone to Smithtown in Penns Valley to work for Mr. John Kimport.

The plasterers have one coat of plaster on the Lutheran church. The carpenters will complete the church as soon at the work can be done.

The farmers hereabouts are done husking corn.

The water managers should give their attention to the pipes and get them in better shape before winter sets in. Especially at the southern end of town something ought to be done, as the road will be almost impassable.

The Lutheran cangregation will celebrate the Lord's supper in the Reformed church next Sunday. Services on Saturday evening.

Beni. Roush sold his horse last week for $150.

Landlord Moyer—how about those five dollors?

Benj. Royer sold one of his horses the other day.

Charley Grimm swapped horses with Mr. Cook of Howard.

Mr. Andrew Ocker has been confined to the sickbed for the last two weeks.

Mrs. Royer, the mother of Benj. and Jacob Royer, has for some time been lying sick at her daughter's residence, Mrs. Gramley in Nittany Valley.

B. F. Miller has built an ice house on his premises.

Dr. Lee has moved into his house opposite the school house.

John W. Hazel moved into the old foundry house last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Keller moved into the house vacated by Mr. Hazel.

Mr. Oscar Nestleroad, who is in Illinois at present and has been away for over two years, expects to return home after election.

Ed. Zimmerman will be over on Saturday, as usual. STILL.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

Spring Mills Items.

The schools of our town are in a flourishing condition.

The new house of Messrs. Rearick & McClintic makes a splendid appearance since it has been painted.

I. J. Grenoble sent four carloads of coal over the new road to Centre Hall. It will be a novel thing to that burg, when they can enjoy all the railroad conveniences.

G. R. Spigelmyer consolidated his two stores into one and now has quite an assortment of goods.

The average attendance of the M. E. Sunday school at this place for the last quarter was 93, which compares well with other schools in the county.

Mr. Emanuel McCool and his two sons started for Illinois. His wife not consenting to go, is still here.

UNCLE PETE.

MARRIED.

The Lucky Man.

The bank was closed, because the cashier and paying teller had gone to Canada for a few years' vacation. They had taken with them more than enough to pay their expenses. Few people visited the receiver and the president. The failure of the institution was an old story. The depositors and stockholders had surged about the doors at first, and crowded and pushed for places; but as they would have to wait for their dividends, there was no longer any excitement around the doors,and anybody was admitted.

'May I see the receiver?' asked a shrewd, happy-looking man of the president.

'Certainly; but won't I do as well?'

'Who are you?' the visitor inquired.

'I am the president.'

'Yes, I guess you'll suit me. I want to deposit some money in this bank.'

'Money in this bank! Why, it has failed — 'busted' — stopped payment. The cashier has got away with all the money.'

'Yes,' answered the stranger; 'I know that well enough. That's the reason I came here.'

'Man alive! you don't want to put your cash in an insolvent bank! We have no idea of resuming.'

'I don't care a straw for that. I want you to take my deposit.'

'Can't do it,'said the president,firmly: 'You'd loose it.'

'Loose it? Not much. Never lost a cent in my life.'

'What do you mean?'

'I mean just this—that I'm the unhappiest man in existence, because I'm so lucky. It is luck that is just killing me, and I want it to turn. I have heard that in my theological history there was a man who could not touch anything without it turning into gold. I must be a decendant of his.'

'Well, my friend,your luck will certainly turn this time. If I took your money it would be thrown among the assets, and you'd get in return but a small dividend. But I won't do it.'

'Nothing of the sort,' returned the would-be depositor: 'The bank would be open again in a week, everybody would be paid in full, and I should double or treble my money in some way or other. Oh, if you'd only let me leave it here!'

'No, sir.'

'It is always the way,' returned the visitor, dejectedly: 'Nobody will take pity on me, and this abominable good luck will continue to follow me throughout life. Listen, kind sir, to my sad story:

'When I was a young man I sent my little brother to make a deposit in a savings-bank. Johnny fell down on his way and didn't pay it in. The next day that bank 'busted' and paid but one cent on the dollar- I bought a lottery ticket, and won the capital prize and received the cash. The following week all lotteries in the State were suppressed. I went to a club at a watering-place, threw a five-dollar bill on the 00. it came up ten times running, and I left. That night all gambling houses were raided by the police. I found my way to Wall street. I bought a hundred shares of the first stock that came on hand. It was 'cornered' in the morning, and I cleared a little fortune. A rich widow smiled on me at Saratoga. I offered myself, and was excepted. We were married. Our happiness was short-lived. In less than ten days she fell overboard in the lake and was drowned. Her immense fortune became mine.

Now my misery began. I had too much money,and I knew not what to do with it. I threw myself in the way of bunco-steerers, in the hope of being swindled. They would let me draw real prizes, and send me home with genuine coin and greenbacks. If I buy a piece of swampy land full of malaria it will rise in price over night and bring me five thousand dollars a foot. I once tried to loose a big roll of large bills. I dropped it in the gutter. It was of no use. A tramp who had seen me do it ran after me, and put the roll-back in my pocket. I sped like the wind; he went faster,and I was foiled. I offered him a thousand dollar bill for his trouble. He declined to take more than fifty cents. And now you refuse the trifling boon I ask. The world is in a conspiracy against me. Would that I were poor!'

Then the unhappy man went forth from the 'busted' bank, looking the picture of despair.—Puck.

Girls in Odd Stockings.

'Scarlet stockings? Yes, they're all the go,' said a Chestnut street hosiery dealer yesterday. 'But that isn't the latest craze by any means.'

'What is the latest fashion then?'

'Why, on Saturday morning I had three young lady customers who came in and bought three pair of red and three pair of black hose. I was somewhat surprised and asked the object. In each case I was told that it was not considered the proper caper to wear two red stockings now, any more than it is to wear two black ones.'

'Well, what on earth were they going to do?'

'Wear one of each kind—a scarlet stocking on one foot and a black one on the other. It's a fact I assure you. And the fashion is gaining ground,for this morning I have had several more customers on the same errand. Black and red,you know, are striking and at the same time becoming contrasts.'

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant ao the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR.

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever,and the pulse more frequent,the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
